

Dr John B Clements

John is a missiological educator, having received a doctorate from Fuller Theological Seminary School of Intercultural Studies, in 2012.

Having been a regular visitor to Burkina Faso, West Africa, over the past decade, he is currently engaged in developing Maize Plant Discipleship:

“...a practical, relevant and accessible discipleship resource, designed in consultation with Africans, for use in African contexts, being published as a series of low-cost, short, modular textbooks, incorporating oral and literary components and therefore suitable for formal and informal study, so that biblical education that starts inside classrooms does not end there, but moves constantly outwards, drawing whole communities into a pattern of scripturally-based discipleship and a living dialogue with contextual culture.”

John is also presently working with a team of other educators and missional practitioners to establish a UK Centre for African Mission.

- Vocational website <http://jbclements.wordpress.com>,
- Linked-in profile <http://uk.linkedin.com/in/jbclements>
- Maize Plant Discipleship
<http://maizeplantdiscipleship.wordpress.com>
- MPD twitter feed @MPDResource
- UK Centre for African Mission <http://ukcafricanmission.wordpress.com>

John is married to Sarah; they have three boys and one girl and presently live in a delightful corner of South West Wales, UK. John is an avid bird-watcher and casual photographer, pastimes that he combines with his enjoyment of countryside and coastal walking.

- Personal profile <http://about.me/jbclements>
- Personal twitter feed @johnbrc

John may be contacted for further information, at any of the internet addresses above, or via

- Email clements.jb@gmail.com